Component Mission

The National Intelligence University (NIU) is the Intelligence Community's sole accredited, federal degree-granting institution. NIU advances the intelligence profession through a holistic, integrative, contextual approach to education that promotes dynamic teaching, engaged learning, original research, academic outreach, analytical problem solving, rigorous research methods, collaborative processes, and lifelong learning.

Major Duties and Responsibilities (MDRs)

Incumbent serves on the National Intelligence University faculty within the Global Security Intelligence Studies Department. Serves in leadership positions within the department and teaches core and elective courses in the NIU degree program, with strong collaboration with Program Directors, faculty colleagues, and the Dean; conducts research in his/her area of expertise.

Responsibilities include, but are not limited to: serving in key leadership positions with the College of Strategic Intelligence and NIU as assigned; developing, delivering, and assessing strategic and predictive intelligence education within the NIU, improving courses within the approved curricula for all NIU degrees; serving as a thesis committee member for student research; engaging with the Intelligence Community to bring the most current issues in intelligence into the classroom; and participating in outreach activities to broaden IC and academic visibility on NIU.

Incumbent is responsible for developing, delivering, and improving the courses in the Terrorism Concentration, a Core Course, and other courses as assigned in the areas of global security intelligence. Performs other duties as assigned.

Performs other duties, as assigned.

Mandatory and Educational Requirements

Successfully served in leadership positions within Intelligence Community or academic organizations with responsibility for the management of program(s), personnel, professional development, and resources.

Demonstrated knowledge and experience analyzing the full lifecycle of foreign and domestic terrorist activities, from their political, military, social, and cultural origins to their manifestations as individual terrorists and organized groups operating within a given state or as a transnational network.

Experience with Intelligence Community analysis of key issues related to terrorism, such as roots of terrorism, countering terrorism, and other related transnational challenges.

Expert oral and written communication skills, including the ability to communicate complex information in a clear, concise manner that is targeted to, and meets the needs of, diverse audiences with different perspectives and objectives.
Successful completion of a full course of study in an accredited college or university leading to a Master's Degree or higher that included major study in a subject-matter field appropriate to this position.

Experience teaching and presenting on national security issues or transnational issues-related topics at the graduate level.

Desired Requirements

PhD in a subject-matter field appropriate to this position due to the higher level of expertise required for this senior level faculty position.

Demonstrated experience in academic research and scholarship, writing and reviewing research papers, with demonstrated contributions to the field of Terrorism and Counterterrorism Studies.

Experience with academic course and program development, including creating and evaluating academic assessment data and standards.

Experience in dealing with other transnational issues that contribute to analyzing the complexity of the global strategic environment that produces phenomena such as terrorism, among other factors.

Experience with application or management of educational information and information-related capabilities.
